12 Tax-Forfeited Land parcels to be sold in Clearwater County

By Karen Edelbach
The Clearwater County Board of Commissioners met on May 9, 2017.

Land Commissioner Bruce Cox brought a list of twelve 2016 Tax-Forfeited Land parcels for non-payment of taxes. A resolution was passed by the Board of Commissioners to certify all parcels have been viewed and comply with Minnesota State Statutes. Mr. Cox will send the list to the DNR, then to the townships for their approval to sell the lands.

Authorization was given by the Board members for employee overtime for the Land Department and Campground during the field season when needed, to administer reforestation, site preparation, spraying, road work and operation of the campground outside of normal working hours.

Mr. Cox said the new water heaters are good, and the problem is solved.

Land Sale: Commissioner Arlen Syverson began a discussion by asking if the DNR is attempting to buy land from the County.

Commissioner Dan Stensing said, "They would like to buy land, but not 'from' the county."

"Sometimes they do a Land Exchange," added Commissioner Dean Newland. "Fish and Wildlife Department buys easements, and that is a Federal program. The easement follows the land."

Commissioner Neal Illies also added that future owners are the ones who pay for it.

County Engineer, Dan Sauvé received Board approval for payment of the Clearwater County Highway Department bills as presented in the amount of $16,735.

The Commissioners approved the hiring of Zachary McLellan as an Engineering Technician II at a starting salary of $22.00 per hour.

The Assistant County Engineer position was approved to be non-exempt effective May 21, 2017. A change to the Personnel Policy was approved that any non-exempt employees will now have the choice of taking cash or comp time effective May 21, 2017, unless it is above 80 hours, then it must be cash over time. This change will be added to the policies.

"It should be up to the employee whether they take cash or comp time," said Engineer Sauvé.

Commissioner John Nelson said that for insurance purposes employees can use their comp time.

County Auditor-Treasurer Allen Paulson said that the pipeline tax issue seemed to have gone dead, and that the Department of Revenue said they would "work with the Counties."

Mr. Paulson said that the County will be in the black for the remainder of the year. The budget process will be starting again in July.

The Auditor-Treasurer was given authorization to pay the submitted invoices of $121,118 for the County Revenue Fund and $12,397 for the Nursing Service Fund.

Commissioners present at the meeting were Daniel Stenseng, Dean Newland, John Nelson, Neal Illies and Arlen Syverson.

The Clearbrook-Gonvick FFA hosted a Petting Zoo at the school. Fences were set up and animals were put there for children to enjoy. There were lambs, goats, baby calf, pigs and rabbits along with Rosie the miniature horse. School Readiness students were enjoying the 27 1/2 inch horse. The horse belongs to Peggy Arlaud Special Education Paraprofessional at the school.

CLWC-Gonvick hosts Mustard Seed Homes graduation

On Saturday, April 22, Clear Waters Life Center honored three young men who completed the Mustard Seed Homes program. Mustard Seed Homes is a 12-month program that provides a safe environment to: maintain sobriety, stabilize mental health, transition to independence with focused life skill and vocational training. CWLC has offered this program since 2008; 69 men have participated in the program: some for just a few days or weeks; others a few months; and a select few have completed and moved on to lead fulfilling, productive lives.

Mustard Seed Homes (MSH) has several general goals for its residents: life skills that include nutrition, meal preparation, and general household skills; vocational skills that include refinishing furniture, carpentry, food service, landscaping and gardening (greenhouse), communication, and building maintenance. Residents are also enrolled in Adult Basic Education (ABE) to learn or sharpen digital literacy (computer) skills, brush up on basic academic skills to enroll in a technical school or college or earn a GED; In addition there is a strong emphasis on rebuilding family relationships; developing a support system, and spiritual growth.

Scott Bruski, Seth Ellefson, and Phillip Taber-Noell were the center of attention as they shared their stories of brokenness and loss to becoming overcomers with a strong faith in Jesus Christ and His power to change lives. They were joined by their families in sharing the positive difference that Mustard Seed Homes has made in their lives. More than 120 attended to celebrate the victories of Scott, Seth, and Phillip; these individuals and families supported the residents' journeys as staff and volunteers of MSH and CWLC. As a faith-based community whose mission is to provide a place to impart hope and enrich the lives of individuals and families, Clear Waters Life Center celebrated the reality of what can happen when people of faith join together to accomplish a greater good.

"Truly I tell you, if you have faith as small as a mustard seed, you could say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there,' and it will move. Nothing will be impossible for you."

Thoughts from the Sheriff

Clearwater County Sheriff Darin Halverson

Recently I attended a meeting about juvenile detention and it got me thinking about the many questions I get about what happens in criminal cases when the offender is under the age of 18. So, this month, I will explain the different categories of juvenile offenders and what options the courts have for dealing with those offenders after going through the court system.

There is a major difference between adult court and juvenile court. In juvenile court, many of the proceedings are more of a civil hearing, not criminal. The intent of the court is to develop individual responsibility for their unlawful behavior, rehabilitate them, and at the same time, promote public safety.

If a juvenile commits a crime, they can fall into different categories, depending on the crime committed. Anyone under the age of 18 who commits an act that would be criminal if they were an adult fall into the delinquent category. Sometimes, the court has to deal with children under the age of ten who have committed delinquent acts and those cases are handled as civil CHIPS (children in need of protection services) hearings.

The next category of juvenile offenders are called petty offenders. If a juvenile commits an act that would not be criminal if they were an adult such as underage drinking, smoking or city ordinances like curfew violations are dealt with in this category. Certain nonviolent misdemeanor offenses also fall into this category with some exceptions (MN State Statute 260B.007 subd. 16).

When a juvenile commits a traffic violation, depending on the age and the nature of the traffic offense, fall into the juvenile traffic offender category. Most traffic offenses committed by children 16 years and older are handled exclusively through the adult court. Juveniles under the age of 15 who commit traffic offenses fall under the juvenile court jurisdiction (MN State Statute 260B.225).

Sometimes an act is committed that is so dangerous, or there is a pattern of criminal behavior, that the case could be more appropriately handled through the adult court system. In these cases, juveniles over the age of 14 can be certified as adults. These would be all felony level offenses. The prosecutor in these cases must present to the court evidence that the public safety is best served by having the adult court handle the case. Once the certification has occurred, the juvenile is treated as an adult defendant. At times, the law presumes that certain juvenile offenders will be certified as an adult. This happens if they are 16 or 17 years old at the time of the felony offense and there is probable cause to believe that the felony offense would result in a commitment to prison under the sentencing guidelines or the felony was committed while using a firearm. The juvenile has the right, in these cases, to present clear and convincing evidence to the court that the case would be better handled through the juvenile system. The burden to prove this falls solely on the juvenile offender.

If the juvenile convinces the court that their felony-level offense would be best handled in juvenile court, the juvenile is put in the extended jurisdiction juvenile (EJJ) category. This category allows the courts to have jurisdiction over the juvenile until they reach the age of 21. A conviction in this category results in a juvenile court sentence and a stayed adult sentence. This means that the juvenile has the adult sentence hanging over their head and if they do not comply with their juvenile sentence, the adult sentence can be imposed and they may be sent to prison.

In all other cases, what does the court do to juvenile offenders after they have gone through the juvenile court system? There are a few options that the court can hand down. These include fines, probation, counseling, home detention, sex offender treatment (if appropriate), out of home placement, restitution or community service and placement in a state juvenile correctional facility.

The price tag for handling juvenile cases are quite high. Taxpayers are the ones paying for any confinement or out of home placements for these juveniles that are committing delinquent acts. Some of these juveniles could benefit from guidance in their life. I understand that it is impossible to know where your child is at every second, but talking to them and asking who they are hanging out with and what they are doing may prevent problems down the road. Even with supervision, kids will be kids and make mistakes. That is why the juvenile court system operates in the way it does. The hope is to change the behavior at a young age to prevent further incarceration later in life. The fact of the matter is, everyone makes mistakes, but success is determined by whether you learn from those mistakes and make changes in your life.

If you have questions that you would like answered or any suggestions, please email me at darin.halverson@co.clearwater.mn.us or call the Sheriff's Office at 218-694-6226. You can also find us on Facebook by searching for Clearwater County Sheriff's Office.

Thank you and as always, I am honored to serve as your Clearwater County Sheriff.

Joke time...

An elderly couple returned to a Mercedes dealership to find the Salesman had just sold the car they were interested in to a beautiful, Leggy, blonde.

"I thought you said you would hold that car till we raised the $75,000 asking price," said the man. "Yet I just heard you closed the deal for $65,000 to that lovely young lady there. You insisted there could be No discount on this model."

"Well, what can I tell you? She had the ready cash and just look at Her, how could I resist?" replied the grinning salesman. Just then the young woman approached the old folks and handed them the keys.

"There you go," she said. "I told you I could get this joker to drop the price. See you later, Grandpa. Love you!"
